Detailed Quote Form - Fragile Removals

Canonical: https://www.fragileremovals.com.au/detailed-quote-form/

Details:

Start the detailed quote form when you have your move details ready. The form collects the service, locations, access, dates, inventory and contact information needed to prepare an estimate. For help completing it, call 1800 500 584 or contact Fragile Removals .

Choose the service and locations

Identify what you need moved and enter the collection and delivery locations. Describe the property type at each end. The form asks separately about parking and access at both properties, including how far the truck will park from the entrance.

Treat these as two separate access checks. A straightforward collection does not mean delivery will be equally simple. Describe stairs, lifts, narrow access, height restrictions or a long carry where relevant. If a property or access arrangement is still uncertain, tell us instead of submitting an assumption as a confirmed detail.

Set your dates

Enter your intended moving date and indicate flexibility where the form allows it. Flexibility choices include three days, a week or a fortnight. Distinguish your preferred collection date from any fixed deadline for delivery, keys or a property handover.

For an interstate move, ask us to confirm the collection and delivery windows before relying on a particular arrival date. For a gap between properties, include your storage requirements .

Build the inventory

The form includes an item selector for household belongings. Work through the rooms and other storage areas systematically so the estimate reflects the load you intend to send. Include furniture, appliances and other large items, as well as the cartons that will accompany them.

Typical inventory choices include beds, desks, tables, mirrors, microwaves, bikes, stereos and pool tables. For an item that is not listed, use Add Custom Item and enter its description, length, width, height and quantity. Check the dimension units shown in the form. Tell us separately about weight, delicate components or unusual handling needs.

Use measuring furniture in cubic metres to understand volume calculations. An inventory estimate still needs the actual access and handling information for your job.

What happens to the details you enter

The form asks for personal information, so it is worth knowing how it is handled before you fill it in. Our privacy policy states that the information collected for a quotation can include your name, address, contact details and payment information, and that it may be provided to agents, shipping companies, subcontractors, insurers or insurance brokers in order to complete the service you asked for. It also states that you can decline electronic marketing and unsubscribe at any time. If you would rather not submit an inventory through a form at all, send the same information another way and ask us to confirm receipt.

Add your contact details and optional services

Complete your contact details so we can follow up. The supplementary-service choices include packing assistance, storage, packing materials, end-of-lease or move-out cleaning, car transport and pet relocation. Select the help you want to discuss, then confirm availability, provider, scope and price; selecting an interest does not book that service.

Before submitting, check the locations, dates and inventory together. If details change afterwards, send the revised information and ask whether the estimate needs updating. A submitted request is the start of the quotation process; confirm the final scope, price and booking terms with us.

Read the privacy policy before providing personal information. Use the removalist comparison guide to review the written quote when it arrives.

Does the quote form replace a confirmed booking?

No. Submitting the form starts an estimate request; it does not by itself confirm an available date, final price or booked service. Review the reply to ensure the addresses, inventory, access, dates and optional tasks are correct, then confirm the scope and booking terms with us. Distinguish a preferred collection date from a fixed delivery or key-handover deadline, particularly for interstate work. If any detail changes after submission, send the update and ask whether the estimate needs revision before relying on the earlier arrangement.

What if my item does not match the inventory choices?

Use Add Custom Item to describe an unlisted item and enter its length, width, height and quantity, following the units shown in the form. Also provide any known weight, manufacturer instructions, condition or access concern that affects handling. Contact us if the form cannot capture an important detail. Do not omit the item or assume a generic choice includes dismantling, specialist preparation or equipment.

How should I describe access at collection and delivery?

Treat the two properties as separate checks. Record stairs, lifts and bookings, parking distance from the entrance, narrow routes, height restrictions and other constraints that affect carrying or vehicle access. Identify uncertain arrangements rather than marking them as confirmed. Large furniture may fit the destination room while failing at a doorway or turn, so include those measurements or concerns as well. Accurate access information helps us assess the resources and estimate; a straightforward collection does not establish straightforward delivery.

How should I use the form’s date-flexibility choices?

The form offers flexibility options such as three days, a week or a fortnight. Use the option that reflects what you can actually accommodate, and separately explain fixed deadlines such as tenancy handover, key collection or business opening. Flexibility is information for planning, not a guarantee of a lower price or a particular arrival date. For interstate work, ask for separate collection and delivery windows, and include any storage requirement if your properties are unavailable at the same time.

How do you choose the service and locations?

Identify what you need moved and enter the collection and delivery locations. Describe the property type at each end. The form asks separately about parking and access at both properties, including how far the truck will park from the entrance. Treat these as two separate access checks.
